Brain-Friendly Teaching: 15 Practical Tips to Transform Your Classroom

Abstract

What is neuropedagogy, and how can neuroscience help us create more meaningful learning experiences? In this practical and dynamic session, educators will explore 15 brain-compatible strategies designed to improve attention, participation, motivation, and long-term learning in the classroom. Participants will discover how to create resonant and “chaordic” learning environments, understand the difference between learning and truly internalizing knowledge, and explore simple ways to help the brain rest and reset during lessons. Ideal for educators seeking engaging, inclusive, and neuroscience-informed teaching practices.
